

hibernia — REIT —

HG Technology really understood what it was that we needed to improve, as well as offering suggestions about other areas they thought we could develop. They communicated with us at every step giving us chance to test, review and revise to ensure that we were satisfied with the solution before it was made live. We now have a highly effective way of managing our EHS information with simplified form creation and access.

Hibernia REIT is an Irish real estate investment trust who were looking for a solution to improve their environmental, health and safety (“EHS”) management system. This included simplifying the creation of regularly used incident forms and thereby improving the accuracy of creation, maintenance and filing of forms along with improving the mechanisms by which they could be found later.

As well as reorganising their file storage, the team at HG Technology kept the communication levels high with Hibernia REIT during the project to ensure a swift completion.

Live data lists were implemented incorporating data fed from information stored in other areas of their SharePoint site. Automation was used to assist the control of document creation and to provide easy access to the resulting completed documents.

As part of the project, we created a range of new document libraries, tailoring security for areas where it was necessary as well as creating several data lists to store the relevant and necessary information. This was linked in with existing systems to ensure vital data for analysis would always be drawn from a ‘single source of truth’.

A new system was created that allowed Hibernia to easily generate forms from templates, whilst also using automation workflows to create the relevant documents in an appropriate storage location ready tagged and easily accessible via auto-generated hyperlinks to speed access and editing.

HG have continued to engage with Hibernia to ensure that the EHS system continues to meet the needs of the organisation through regular dialogue and enhancements as the requirements develop. Upon completion Hibernia found the system to be highly effective and to meet all of their needs. Furthermore, HG Technology received praise from the external EHS auditors, BSI Group, who were highly impressed with the work that we had produced and said it was the best EHS system they had seen on SharePoint.
